CBSE Class 10 Exam 2020. The Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) is planning to conduct two examinations for Mathematics in the class 10 board examinations for 2020. While the first examination will be basic the second one will be standard mathematics test. The board has also specified that those students who wish to take up basic mathematics in class 10 board examinations will not be able to take up mathematics in class 11. These students will have to take up the compartmental examinations of class 10 to study mathematics in class 11. However, this option is applicable only if the candidate has passed the basic mathematics exam in the class 10 examination.

The options for the mathematics examination will be specified in the exam registration form for the class 10 board exam 2020. The controller of Board examination, Dr. Sanyam Bhardwaj said that the students opting for basic mathematics will not be able to take mathematics for their class 11 subjects. And if at all these students score good marks in the basic mathematics examination and wish to pursue mathematics for class 11 examination they will have to appear for the class 10 compartmental exam which will be conducted in July next year. It must be noted that only after passing the compartmental examination will the candidate be able to take up mathematics in class 11. It is the first time that the board has offered a chance for the students to give the compartmental exam in the subject.

It must be noted that the board has not changed the syllabus for basic and standard mathematics papers. The syllabus will be the same while there will be changes in the difficulty level of both the papers. The board has also advised the students to take up mathematics only if they are interested in the subject. Those students who are not interested in the subject and who are weak in the subject have been advised to take up basic mathematics. The students who take basic mathematics will be passed in the examination by the board. Updated: Aug 9, 2019 07:34 IST CBSE
